

Louisiana Agriculture & Forestry Today

Dear Reader,

In the wake of unprecedented destruction caused by Hurricane Katrina, I am writing to reassure you the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is determined to reunite families and their pets, small and large, as quickly as possible.

Veterinarians from the department and USDA's Veterinary Services coordinate the State Animal Response Team (SART) in conjunction with public health veterinarians and local humane groups. This group made necessary preparations and helped organize evacuation shelters for large and small animals before Hurricane Katrina made landfall.

After the storm hit, SART took the lead in the largest animal rescue program in the history of the United States. Professionals and volunteers have been working around the clock to save animals and reunite them with their owners. Those animals that are strays are also being rescued, sheltered and put up for adoption here and in other states that have offered help.

It is important that everyone realize the veterinary professionals organizing these efforts are accomplishing tasks that will set the standard for future hurricane recovery work. I have been to the shelter at the Lamar-Dixon Expo Center in Gonzales and the workers there are doing an excellent job.

They are processing animals at a rapid pace so they are able to rejoin their families or be put up for adoption. This processing not only reunites families and pets, but is also protecting public health. It involves a medical evaluation for external and internal parasites, vaccinations, microchipping for identification purposes and taking a photograph to put on Petfinder.com.

During the medical evaluation, veterinarians or their assistants check the animal to make sure it is fit to travel to a shelter and that it is not carrying any diseases that could be passed on to humans or other animals. We do not want to send a sick animal out of state where it could infect anyone or anything with which it has contact.

Microchipping uses the latest technology in animal identification. The number stored in the microchip is linked to a database of information containing the address or location where the animal was found, where the animal is now located and any medical treatment it has received since the hurricane.

Again, I want to reassure you that we are working diligently to take care of all the animals that have been rescued and are doing our best to promptly reunite owners and their pets.

Sincerely,

Bob Odom

Commissioner

Did You Know:

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is temporarily lifting the arborist licensing requirement for emergency tree work involving downed or broken trees.

"We are talking about trees on houses, cars, driveways and other emergency type situations," Commissioner Bob Odom said. "It's simply the cutting and removal of downed or damaged trees, nothing more."

The decision to temporarily lift the licensing requirement is carefully thought out following each storm.

"This is always a close call," Odom said. "We don't want to open our citizens up to shoddy work, but we're also realistic. We know there aren't enough licensed arborists in the state to complete all the work that must be done in a timely manner."

"We suspended the requirement for Andrew and Lili and now we're going to allow unlicensed tree cutters to take care of emergency situations in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina."

However, Odom advised homeowners to carefully supervise any tree work being done and not to pay for the work until the job is finished to the homeowner's satisfaction. The department will provide regulatory oversight.

"This is not for tree work necessary to repair, maintain or preserve a tree. This exemption is designed to apply only to emergencies."

Odom also strongly cautioned that no one but licensed arborists or utility company personnel are to work on downed trees on utility lines.

As of September 5, 2005, in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, mail is undeliverable to ZIP codes in Louisiana with the prefixes 700, 701 and 704, and ZIP codes in Mississippi with the prefixes 369, 393, 394, 395 and 396. Until further notice we will be unable to deliver the Market Bulletin in those areas of Louisiana and Mississippi.
